It's no wonder I'm ready to take the first steps to bring a healthy transformation to my life's work.”

Futurist for Humanity:

Forbes recognized Ayelet as one of the top global female futurists, and while she has numerous awards and recognition for her breakthrough books and work, her focus continues to be on bringing conscious leadership and communication to the forefront. Her sweet spot is partnering with visionaries and pioneers focused on the next wave of education, business, wellness, regenerative agriculture and areas we are starting to identify and create.

While she has worked as a tech executive in the Silicon Valley and loves technology, she brings holistic approaches and treks to integrate technology into the fabric of our lives and work when it adds value; never leading with digital technology. Ayelet's approach is for anyone who wants to get cracking on what is possible to bring healthy ways of living and working by tapping into timeless technologies like dialogue, trust, connection and community. Many of her predictions around the future of work and life have manifested. And now is the time to lay the foundation for what's next.

Author and Adventurer:

As a multi award winning author, facilitator and keynote speaker, Ayelet writes from the heart and contributes insights into conscious living, conscious business, future of life and work and questions everything. Her books and talks serve as guides where each person and organization is asked to do their own work in identifying their path. Her specialty is serving as a trusted partner who helps people navigate their own compass. Ayelet's dream is a world in which we promote the flourishing of life; where we trust our hearts, make healthy choices and create the regenerative systems we need to thrive.

Community Builder:

Ayelet is recognized for her ability to bring transformative, holistic, large-scale change and build communities. Her strategies bring together people and perspectives that result in real world outcomes.
